Getting on their bikes, these cubs are hoping to raise as much money as possible for childhood cancer.

Taking up the Great Cycle Challenge throughout October, eight members of the Quakers Hill-Doonside Scouts have so far raised more than $1600 for the Children's Medical Research Institute — nearly twice their original target goal of $1000.

The Quakers Hill-Doonside scouts and cubs are riding 600km in the Great Cycle Challenge to raise money for childhood cancer research.

Cub Scout Leader Lisa Nicholls said she was taking part in the 600km challenge and was proud of the cub's efforts, including her daughter Rachael.

"None of them have been personally touched by cancer but it's great to see the kids get involved," Mrs Nicholls said.

So far, the young cyclists have nearly doubled their original donation target goal.

Mrs Nicholls said the young cyclists realised how lucky they were to have their health and wanted to help out children diagnosed with cancer.

"It's such a devastating disease and this is a wonderful initiative," Mrs Nicholls said.
